![UBS logo]

Adam Gustafsson

Investment Data Scientist

UBS Asset Management

Years of investment industry experience: 12

Education: Imperial College London, MSc (UK),

Uppsala University, BSc & MSc (SWE)

Adam Gustafsson leads Quantitative Evidence and Data Science (QED) in Europe. QED's mandate is to drive data science into UBS AM's investment business. Adam specializes in quantamental and decarbonization research. In 2021 he published the whitepaper The Value of a Green transition.

Adam is also a member of UBS's Sustainability and Impact Institute (SII). SII's mandate is to provide thought leadership on sustainability to the UBS group and across the financial industry.

Before joining UBS in 2020, Adam worked at Credit Suisse. Most recently, in equity research (HOLT) focusing on data driven fundamental research. He also worked as a quantitative analyst, in both London and New York, developing pricing and risk models across Credit Suisse's global markets business.